

Hundreds Of Nursing Homes Quit Medicare Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds of the nation's nursing homes have quit the Medicare program. Many others still in the program refuse to accept new Medicare patients.

A nationwide Associated Press survey disclosed that more than 500 nursing homes have withdrawn since extended care provisions of the federal health care program began three years ago. In the last six months alone, Social Security Administration figures show, 295 extended care facilities have dropped Medicare voluntarily.

Some of this impact is canceled, however, by enrollment of newly built facilities in the booming nursing home industry. Government officials trace the industry's discontent to a crackdown on misuse and overuse of Medicare's benefits.

No so, say nursing home administrators. Their dissatisfaction results, they contend, from retroactive denial of benefits, staggering paperwork and low rates.

The AP survey turned up no instances of elderly patients being suddenly turned out of nursing homes. But many administrators said their homes no longer accept Medicare patients, though still qualified under the program.

"The national trend of nursing homes to drop out of Medicare's extended care program" was cited this month by Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, when he launched congressional hearings on nursing home problems.

But a Social Security Administration spokesman said, "there's no trend. The number of homes in the program goes up and down."

Although 295 homes quit the program in six months, this official said, others signed up so the net loss was only 50—from 4,900 certified extended care facilities July 1, to 4,850 Jan. 1.

There are about 25,000 nursing homes in the nation, but not all can qualify for Medicare's extended care program because of such requirements as around-the-clock licensed nursing care.

Medicare does not pay for custodial nursing home care. Rather, it was designed to pay for short-term stays in nursing homes for patients recuperating after discharge from a hospital.

To qualify, a patient must require skilled nursing care on a continuing basis. He also must enter an extended care facility (ECF) within two weeks after leaving a hospital where he had remained at least three consecutive days.

On a typical day, 80,000 elderly nursing home patients across the country are having their bills paid by Medicare. The average stay in a nursing home under Medicare is 50 days. The average monthly claim is $365.

Medicare pours about $450 million a year into nursing homes, but this is less than half of the more than $1 billion paid nursing homes annually by Medicaid, the state administered, largely federal financed program of medical care for low income people of all ages.

Medicaid, in general, pays the bills of elderly patients who need less intensive, but longer-term, nursing home care.

In a few states, Medicaid is more controversial than Medicare. In Ohio, the number of nursing homes participating in Medicare increased 16 during 1969 and now total 212. But nursing home operators in parts of the state are talking of boycotting Medicaid in a dispute over benefit levels.

"Medicaid isn't worth a hoot," said Rowland Lutz, administrator of a large Columbus home. "We do not take Medicaid patients." In contrast, Lutz said, "Medicare is not a problem with us."

But hundreds of other nursing homes view Medicare—not Medicaid—as causing bigger headaches.

Cong Hit 51 Allied Sites

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong made their heaviest rocket and mortar attacks in 4½ months Tuesday night, shelling 51 allied bases and towns, the U.S. Command reported today.

The allied commands also reported that their troops and U.S. aircraft killed at least 127 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong in half a dozen clashes along the Cambodian and Laotian borders.

About two thirds of the rocket and mortar attacks were in the 3rd Corps area from Saigon 100 miles north to the Cambodian border. About 25 of the attacks caused casualties or damage.

The U.S. Command said two American soldiers were killed and 23 wounded in the shelling.

Light damage was reported, including shrapnel hits on some helicopters. Field reports said 16 South Vietnamese soldiers and 15 civilians were wounded.

American targets included the Army's headquarters for Vietnam at Long Binh and the Bien Hoa Air Base, both about 15 miles northeast of Saigon; the headquarters of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division 36 miles north of Saigon; and two brigade headquarters.

It was the largest number of rocket and mortar attacks since the night of Sept. 4-5, when 74 were reported. U.S. casualties in the ground fighting were put at two killed and eight wounded, while field reports said five South Vietnamese were killed and 19 wounded.

After one battle near the Bu Dop Special Forces camp, 84 miles north of Saigon, the U.S. Command in Saigon first reported 234 enemy soldiers were killed but later reduced this to 27.

Field reports also said one helicopter crewman was killed and eight American ground troops and another helicopter crewman wounded in the battle. The U.S. Command agreed that one helicopter crewman was killed and another wounded but said: "There were no U.S. casualties in the ground action."

Some 35 American B52 bombers flew heavy raids during the night against a North Vietnamese buildup reported near the Ben Het Special Forces camp, on the Cambodian border 275 miles northeast of Saigon.

Dr. Tanay, who was still on the witness stand, calmed Bishop.

Dr. Tanay said it would be better if Bishop were excused while the remainder of the tape was played. The court granted the request.

In the tape, Bishop, speaking in a slow, heavy voice said: "I shot her, I shot her. Why her, why her? I just kept shooting and shooting. Why her? She was always sweet, always an angel."

Following the testimony of Dr. Carron, Judge Conlin is expected to charge the jury of 10 women and four men. Two of the jurors will then be eliminated by lot and the jury will begin its deliberations.

The five possible verdicts it can reach are not guilty, not guilty by reason of insanity and guilty of first-degree murder, second-degree murder or manslaughter.

Coed Killing Case In Finish Today

ANN ARBOR (AP)—The case of Ernest Bishop Jr., accused of the first-degree murder of a University of Michigan coed, is expected to go to the jury today.

The prosecution was to call Dr. Dean Carron, psychiatrist at Mercywood Hospital in Ann Arbor as its final rebuttal witness.

Circuit Judge John Conlin Tuesday denied a mistrial motion by Prosecutor William Delhey. Delhey asked for a new trial after Bishop broke down during an evening session of the trial Monday.

Over prosecution objections, Judge Conlin allowed the defense to introduce tape recordings of interviews with Bishop, a 28-year-old laborer, by Dr. Emmanuel Tanay, a psychiatrist who has examined Bishop several times. The defense is basing its case on insanity.

The tapes were taken while Bishop was under the influence of sodium amobarbital, a so-called "truth serum."

Just before the tape reached the point where Bishop confessed to shooting Margaret Phillips in her apartment last July, Bishop asked to be allowed to leave the court. Bishop attempted to leave the courtroom, but was restrained by a bailiff.

Senators Ask Moratorium On Reading Tests

LANSING (AP) — Five members of the Michigan Senate say parts of a reading skills test are "anti-free enterprise and anti-industrial" and they want the State Education Department to stop giving the test to youngsters.

Sen. Gary Byker, R-Hudsonville, and four colleagues introduced a resolution Tuesday calling for a "moratorium" on giving the reading section of the Michigan assessment of basic skills test.

The Senate was to convene at 2 p.m. today, with a vote on the resolution slated for the session. If the resolution were enacted, however, it would not have the force of law and would not necessarily commit the department to implementing the legislative intent it specifies.

The department already has given the test to 60 per cent of Michigan's seventh graders, Byker reported. The remaining 40 per cent were expected to take the test — part of a statewide effort at assessing skills of fourth and seventh graders — next week, he said.

Ask Review

Byker's resolution said "the ideological thrust of several of the pages used... to measure readership comprehension are anti-free enterprise and anti-industrial."

The department, it concluded, should be "enjoined" from continuing administering the test and schools which have not given the test to pupils "shall be relieved of the obligation to do so until there has been sufficient time to review the content of the test."

Byker objected to such passages as:

"The coming of industrialization has brought new and unique problems to the attention of the nation. For example, the use of machinery on farms has released a flood of workers who must find new jobs. New industries spring up to employ these laborers, but as each new industry produces a new labor-saving device, more laborers are replaced by machines. It seems a never-ending problem."

The statement continues: "Industrial leaders have not faced up to the problems that this cycle creates; the large degree of instability and lack of direction that exists is frightening..."

Group Bi-Partisan

Cosponsors of the resolution, reported out of the Senate Business Committee shortly after it was introduced, were Republican Sens. James Fleming of Jackson, George Kuhn of Birmingham and Robert Huber of Troy, as well as Democratic Sen. Stanley Rozycki of Detroit.

Congress, Nixon Face Clash Over Pollution

Compromise In Education Aid Talks Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House, facing stiff Republican resistance to President Nixon's threatened veto of an education money bill, is beginning to talk compromise.

Assurances have been given to key GOP members that if Congress upholds a Nixon veto of the appropriation because it goes $1.2 billion over his budget, he will accept a lesser increase in a new bill.

The case for compromise was strengthened Tuesday when the Senate voted, 74-17, in favor of the $19.7 billion appropriations bill for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare. The bill covers the current fiscal year that started last July 1.

Despite the clear warning of a veto and vigorous administration efforts to build support for it, 21 Republicans voted for the bill and only 17 against. The vote was 13 more than the two-thirds required to override a veto.

A compromise is also being considered by supporters of the extra funds in case they fail to override Nixon's veto.

At a Tuesday strategy session they decided they would come right back with a bill trimmed about $400 million and try again.

The certainty that even if a veto is sustained the issue of spending for education will not be settled was underscored during debate Tuesday in both the House and Senate.

Speaker John W. McCormack said if the veto is sustained and a new bill brought before the House there is "no question" extra funds will be added to it.

The surest area of increase is the one the administration has made it chief target—the "impact" aid program, which puts federal dollars into school districts affected by federal activity, such as military installations and large defense contracts.

Nixon requested $202 million for the program but the House and Senate raised the amount to $600 million. The current impact aid figure is $521 million.

Detroit Plants Named Violators Of Air Standards

DETROIT (AP) — Six of the Detroit area's major industrial plants will be cited with 19 complaints of violating air pollution control standards, reports Morton Sterling, director of Wayne County air pollution control.

Sterling listed six plants owned by Ford Motor Co., Great Lakes Steel, Marathon Oil Co., Detroit Grey Iron and Steel Foundries, Atlas Barrel and Co. and Smet Solvay Division of Allied Chemical Corp.

This action comes after years of friendly-persuasion tactics, according to Sterling, and just one month after Henry Ford II, board chairman at Ford, pledged his company to an all out fight against pollution.

Sterling said that "this action serves notice at the beginning of the decade that the time has come to stop endless planning and study and research to find methods that control pollution."

Jordan Says Israeli Raid, 'Major Battle'

By The Associated Press

An Israeli armored force crossed into Jordan south of the Dead Sea Tuesday night, and Amman Radio reported a major land and air battle was under way today.

Saudi Arabian forces stationed in the area joined Arab guerrillas and Jordanian Army units in battling the Israelis, according to a communique issued in Damascus by Al Fatah, the guerrilla organization.

A Jordanian spokesman said the Israelis threw in planes, tanks and artillery. Reports to Amman, 100 miles northeast of the battle area said the Israeli force included about 40 tanks and half-tracks backed by heavy artillery.

Israel said the armored raiding force entered Jordan to attack guerrilla bases.

An Israeli spokesman reported five guerrillas had been killed and a number of Arab vehicles damaged in the "crab operation."

No Israeli casualties were reported.

A Jordanian spokesman said the Israelis invaded at 7 p.m. Tuesday after an air raid in which one Jordanian civilian was killed and three others wounded.

The initial Israeli announcement did not disclose the size of the raiding force.

The military command in Tel Aviv said the operation was launched "following repeated attacks from Jordanian territory on the Dead Sea potash works at Sodom and on civilian settlements in the region."

The potash works were shelled Monday night. Israelis said the shelling attacks came from the village of Safi, a target of Tuesday night's raid. It is 2½ miles inside Jordan.

'Small Budget' Cleanup Draws Fire From Hill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is expected to propose a "small budget" approach of user taxes, research and tax incentives to combat pollution—a program already drawing fire from Democrats and Republicans who demand more drastic action.

High administration sources disclosed Tuesday Nixon's State of the Union message Thursday will include the taxes and research proposals rather than expanded government spending and enforcement authority to clean up the environment.

As outlined by the sources, Nixon's program will fall considerably short of the federal initiatives, money and enforcement being suggested by some Congress members.

Officials said Nixon's "small budget" approach is expected to apply to efforts to stop air pollution and solve the problems of solid waste disposal. Some new federal funds may be asked to battle water pollution.

Spur To Industry

They said more research is needed "because we really don't know what pollution control equipment works yet." Tax credits would be aimed at stimulating industry's own action as against pollution, and user taxes would be proposed to help pay for clean-up.

Even as word of Nixon's program was emerging Tuesday, a bipartisan group of House members already was at work pushing a program running counter to the administration.

They sent letters to fellow congressmen urging appropriation of $1.25 billion in the next fiscal year to help build waste treatment facilities. The six representatives said a 1966 antipollution program deserves full funding and: "To do otherwise is to invite catastrophe."

Such funding was opposed last September by Secretary of Welfare Robert H. Finch who said federal outlays from general revenues for solid waste disposal facilities amount to subsidies for the polluter.

To Modify Jets

Finch figured in another major development on the environmental front Tuesday when he and Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe announced 31 major airlines had agreed to make modifications on jet engines by 1972 to cut down on air pollution.

State's Housing Body OKs $7 Million Bonds

LANSING (AP)—The Michigan State Housing Authority has approved the issuance of $7 million in tax-exempt notes to help finance five housing projects with a total of 694 units to cost an estimated $13 million.

Gov. William Milliken termed this a highly significant act, easing the housing crisis and stimulating Michigan's housing industry.

Notes and bonds from the authority are self-liquidating and will be repaid from federal subsidies and monthly rent payments, not from tax revenues.

Construction on the projects is expected to start by March. Two of the projects are located in Detroit, the others in Grand Rapids, Muskegon Heights and Brownstown Township, Wayne County.

The two Detroit projects are sponsored by Modern American Living, a citizen-oriented non-profit corporation, which is undertaking to revitalize housing adjacent to the new center area through rehabilitation of 175 units in two large apartment buildings, costing $2,709,300.00.

The project in Brownstown Township will have 392 units at a total cost of $7.6 million when completed. The site is within a two-mile radius of 9,000 new jobs.

The authority approved the Greater Grand Rapids Housing Corporation's application for its Hillcrest Project. It will first be rented and later converted to a cooperative to provide an opportunity for individual ownership.

The 79 units will have full city services and cost $1,433,800.

"Operation Housing," an organization composed of religious and lay citizens in Muskegon Heights, submitted a project calling for 50 units of rental housing, costing $956,000. Muskegon Heights needs relocation housing to proceed with redevelopment plans to remove or renovate dilapidated and substandard housing.

Cardinal McIntyre, Now 83, Retires

VATICAN CITY (AP) — James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, known as the archconservative of the American Roman Catholic hierarchy because of feuds with liberal nuns and priests, has retired as archbishop of Los Angeles, the Vatican announced today.

Pope Paul VI accepted the resignation of the 83-year-old cardinal for reasons of age. The cardinal had served his archdiocese for eight years longer than the recommended retirement age of 75 which had been fixed by Pope Paul VI.

Vatican sources said that automatically succeeding Cardinal McIntyre as archbishop of the archdiocese, one of the largest in the United States, would be Archbishop Timothy Manning, formerly bishop of Fresno, Calif., and now coadjutor bishop in Los Angeles with the right of succession.

Nino Green To Run For U.S. Congress

An announcement by Nino Green of Gladstone that he intends to be a Democratic candidate for Congress in the 11th Congressional District received enthusiastic support at the recent Political Reform Convention of the Michigan Democratic Party.

Approval of Green's bid was expressed in a vote among delegates representing the 22 counties which comprise the 11th District.

Green said he has considered becoming candidate for some months, and that his decision was spurred by what he termed the "lack of interest shown by the present Congressman toward his legislative responsibilities."

Critical of Ruppe
"At the time the president was most critical of Congress and threatened to call a special session to complete work on vital legislation our present congressman Philip Ruppe, Houghton Republican remained absent from his duties in Washington," observed Green.

"While others undertook the laborious task of drafting and enacting legislation affecting Social Security benefits and tax reform, Mr. Ruppe was being entertained by his cronies in the district, appearing at fund raising affairs designed to solicit contributions to pay for personal expenses."

Claiming that the economic policies of the Nixon Administration completely disregard the most basic needs of the 11th District, Green called 1970 a golden opportunity for the people to voice their displeasure.

"As money and jobs grow scarce and prices continue to rise at an unprecedented rate, the people will continue to grow weary of Republican rhetoric," he said. "Although the Administration is beyond the reach of the voter until 1972, its standard bearer, Mr. Ruppe, will provide us with a chance to express ourselves clearly."

An Attorney
Green, an attorney, is 32 years old. He and his wife, Sandra, have two children, Joseph, 6, and Leah, 2. He is a member of the law firm of Green, Jason, Casselman & Jason which has offices in Escanaba and Marquette.

Prior to entering private law practice, Green served as Director of Upper Peninsula Legal Services, Inc., in the Upper Peninsula.

Graduate of Wayne

A 1963 graduate of the Wayne Law School, Green also holds a Bachelor's Degree in Sociology and one year of post-graduate credit in the Department of English at Wayne State University.

He is a member of the American Bar Association, State Bar of Michigan, Marquette County Bar Association, Delta County Bar Association, American Civil Liberties Union, Upper Peninsula Committee on Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice, Delta County Government Study Committee, Gladstone Rotary Club and Gladstone Child Welfare Club. Green has been Treasurer of the 11th Congressional District Democratic Party Committee for the past year; and he is also a member of the Delta County Democratic Executive Committee.

He voiced optimism for the Democratic Party in 1970. Noting an unprecedented surge of interest and activity, particularly in the 11th District, during the past year, Green asserted that he had no doubt that Democrats could win in 1970.

"We have gained considerable confidence in recent months; and as we continue to build and demonstrate our leadership role in this District, victory in November will become an increasingly probable result."

Mass Produced Quality Home Industry's Goal

The younger generation has a house in its future — but it's likely to be one it orders from a catalog, to be delivered in four to six weeks, and erected and ready for occupancy within three of four days thereafter.

This is the developing picture on housing presented by Merton Jensen Jr., native of Escanaba, now of Merrill, Wis., in a talk to the Rotary Club at its meeting Tuesday noon at the House of Ludington.

Jensen, with more than 20 years experience in the housing field, will be general manager of the House of Merrill's new factory which is now being constructed for the mass production of quality homes for the mass market.

Thomas Straebel, Rotary president, conducted the meeting and the speaker was introduced by his father, Merton Jensen Sr., Escanaba, who is chairman of the club's program committee.

Meeting The Need
Jensen noted the national attention being given the problem of housing, sometimes described as a crisis and the failure so far to achieve housing goals set by the federal government. Studies indicate the need for 26 million homes in the next 10 years — yet in the first year of the decade only about 1 million were constructed.

Following World War I when industry was geared to meet the requirements of the population explosion, production successfully turned out plenty of everything except new dwellings. Autos and other goods were forthcoming on a mass production basis—except housing.

Within the past five years the housing industry, seeking to meet the need, has had to make many rapid adjustments. Jensen reported. Mass production is necessary since local contractors are unable to fill the need in most communities.

Of Three Types
From the days of the mobile home, mass production has come a long way to produce dwellings that now look like the other homes in the community

Railroad Ordered To Report March 17 On Dust Controls

By DON HOENSHILL
Panax Staff Writer

LANSING — State officials Tuesday ordered the Chicago & North Western Railway to come back March 17 with final plans to end air pollution at its iron ore loading terminal in Escanaba.

The railway disclosed plans to install a giant dust-collecting system estimated to cost up to $600,000.

W. H. Huffman, assistant vice president and chief engineer for the railway, said variables in design could change the estimate after more tests are made and equipment requirements are determined.

Huffman told the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission that some criteria of allowable dust should be determined, "since it is obviously impossible to establish 100 per cent control."

He said the railway's environmental consultant, the Roy F. Weston Co., of Westchester, Pa., has made air sample and other tests in the past two months and recommends fabric filter collectors.

Huffman said two of the units, which he later described as giant vacuum cleaners, would be placed at the rotary car dumper and at the transfer point between the dumper and surge bin.

Dust from the ore pellets affects 75 homes within two blocks and three which are within 50 yards of the area.

Amer Pederson, president of the Delta County Citizens Committee to Save Our Air, said he is considering a lawsuit against the railway as a nuisance in the absence of quick action in Lansing.

"Getting A Runaround"
"I think we're getting a runaround," he said. "Imagine taking tests when the wind is blowing away from the city."

Pederson referred to tests made Jan. 7-8 by Benjamin E. White, an engineer for the Division on Environmental Health of the State Health Department.

White told the commission he made two 24-hour tests of the atmosphere and one test of iron pellet dust in homes. None of the homes had measurable iron dust in the 6-hour testing period.

"This indicates that no health hazard existed in the homes at the time of the study," he said.

Huffman said the operation is down to two shifts from three during this period. In addition, commissioners agreed that the testing time was not normal in volume or wind conditions.

Huffman said the rotary car dumper area should be corrected first to determine what effect it would have on other protested areas, the stacker, the ship loader and the end of the conveyor belts.

By the March 17 meeting, Huffman said he would have a final report on equipment specifications, an updated cost estimate and the project schedule.

Huffman said he had kept his promise to do something about the diesel locomotive staging area, which residents protested caused fumes, noise and vibrations over a residential area.

Cites Telephone Call
"I made a telephone call to Escanaba (from Chicago) with respect to the diesel noise," he said. "After two weeks, I heard no complaints about the noise of the diesels."

"We've got some very bitter people," said Pederson. "The railroad promised to move the diesels out. They said they would do something about the (rail) dispatch shack, but the diesels are still there and all they did was winterize the shack."

Huffman said the situation of the diesels was corrected after a second telephone call insofar as he was informed.

Challenges Commission

Pederson challenged the commission to quick action. Chairman John Soet said the commission is working under procedures.

"When is it (dust-collection system) going to be working," Pederson asked.

"Those are the dates we will be getting March 17," Soet replied.

Pederson retorted: "I don't have any fancy figures, but it's a damned dirty place up there. Those stockpiles are growing and the situation is bad. Until the railroad can come up with a solution to this, we would like the dumper stopped."

"They will come in here March 17, then they will want 8 more months. When do you cut them off?"

Will Check Diesels

Soet said the commission would check into what the railway has done about the diesels and the dispatch shack, but that "we've got to give these people (railroad) an opportunity to act."

Assistant Atty. Gen. Curtis G. Beck told Pederson that the commission "will take every action it possibly can within its powers, but it cannot take precipitous action."

H. George Nelson, of the Delta County Board of Supervisors, who accompanied Pederson, said a Green Bay, Wis., firm has developed a chemical to treat pellets at the mines to avoid dust.

Soet said the commission would check with U. S. Steel, for whom the chemical is being developed, and use its findings in future considerations of the Escanaba case.

Few Wolves Remain In U.P.

By JEAN WORTH
Of Panax Newspapers

A recent educational television show on timber wolves raised questions whether any of these exciting animals remain in the Upper Peninsula?

Happily, the answer is "Yes."

But it is a rather reluctant "Yes" and spoken in a very small voice to avoid attracting public attention.

Inquiry reveals not only the state of our timber wolves but also the hostile state of society toward them which makes their friends reluctant to talk about them for fear they will draw attention which will exterminate the last remnant families of this species in the Upper Peninsula.

The federal government has placed the timber wolf on the list of endangered wildlife species, along with the bald eagle, the red Texan wolf and some other birds and animals which face extinction. Timber wolves have been protected by law since 1965, but they continue to be killed by hunters, with the last reported kill two years ago in Iron County.

Game biologists believe that withdrawal may be as big a threat to their survival here as killing, because the timber wolf is a creature of the wilds. He needs large areas of woodland for range and will not tolerate nor survive much competition with man. He is also a pack animal, used to living and hunting.

Wolf Estimate Regarded 'Low'

Joseph Vogt, Department of Natural Resources game biologist in U.P. Region III (Marquette, Delta and West Alger counties) said a casual DNR estimate of the Upper Peninsula wolf population last summer placed it at 12.

"I think that's low," said Vogt. Most reports on wolves in District III are from Alger County, which has a population that averages only nine persons per square mile. Wolves have been reported in the Huron Mountains, AuTrain and Gwinn areas in the past year.

Bountying of timber wolves ended in 1959 and the last one in District III was taken on the Stonington Peninsula in 1958. In 1954 nine were bountied in the district.

David Meech's radio tracking of wolves in Minnesota showed they ranged 40 to 50 miles and that lone wolves ranged even farther, one having ranged over a 128-mile area in one winter.

ing with other wolves and it is questionable, say biologists, if he will breed when his numbers become too small.

The wolf pack living on the moose herd on Isle Royale is cited as an example of nature's rather mysterious control of wildlife populations to keep them related to their habitat and especially its food supply. Wolf pups die or aren't born on Isle Royale when the pack faces possibility of becoming too numerous for its food supply.

Eight On Ottawa

Biologists believed that there were eight timber wolves on the Ottawa National Forest in the western Upper Peninsula at last count and they say that this number seems to stay fairly static. William Taylor, biologist of the Hiawatha National Forest in the eastern Upper Peninsula, declines to estimate the number of timber wolves in its deeps, but says that there are some in places like the Tahquamenon Swamp and that wolves range into the U.P. occasionally from Canada.

Wildlife managers, he says, have become reluctant to talk much publicly about endangered species like the timber wolf because it tends to create pressures which increase the threat of extermination.

Public concern about endangered species of wildlife is growing, but so is the human intolerance and tolerance is necessary if the children of tomorrow are ever to hear the howl of a timber wolf in Michigan.

While it is legal to hunt coyotes, which are commonplace in the Upper Peninsula, it will be difficult to make the protection of timber wolves airtight against mistaken killing, because most hunters cannot tell a coyote from a wolf, especially a young wolf.

Deer Main Diet

And any hope of sentimentalists and conservationists to permit the survival of a few families of wolves will have to contend with our more ardent deer hunters, who regard them as enemies of the whitetails. Deer are the main winter diet of wolves in our northern forests, but biologists say that we now lose more deer to winter than we would to wolves in range-like northern Marquette County, where the hunting pressures are not heavy.

Wolves stir the imagination much more than deer, which have become so commonplace that superhighways outside of Chicago and Detroit now have signs warning motorists of the dangers of deer on the pavement. To be able to tell U.P. visitors that there were wolves around would excite many of them.

Wolves have always created fear and have always been the villains of scare stories. Little Red Riding Hood traipses through the children's literature of all the northern nations of the world making trouble for the poor wolves. They're found in North America, Europe and Asia and they once ranged through almost every part of the United States, but the timber wolf has become a rare animal south of the Canadian border and even in Canada men are doing what they can to wipe them out. In the Provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba more than 7,000 were killed in one year.

Fear Created

The fear that wolves created in pioneer America was always disproportionate to their threat to humans. Even in recent times the late Editor Jim Curran of the Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Star found it necessary to ridicule fear of wolves by offering a reward of $100 to anyone who could prove "that he was et by a wolf."

Pioneer fear of the wolves is reflected in fanciful writing like the following: "The first settlers of Boston were obliged to fence their cattle at night to protect them from the wolves. They go in great droves at night to hunt deer, and they are often so poor that they can hardly run. When they catch no prey, they go to a swamp and fill their belly full of mud and if afterward they chance to get any flesh they will disgorge the mud and eat the flesh. The fur makes good muffs and the skin makes the best drum-heads and, if tanned, makes the best shoes for the summer countries."

Live On Caribou

In northern Canada the wolves still live on the caribou herds. The great herds of buffalo that roamed the western plains were a prime food for them.

A contemporary account said: "Bands of them hung on the skirts of the bison herds and preyed upon the sick and straggling calves. They do not ordinarily attack the full-grown animals and hunters say they often see wolves walking through a herd of bulls without exciting the least alarm. Marksmen, when they crawl toward a buffalo to shoot it, occasionally wear a cap with two ears in imitation of the head of a wolf, knowing from experience that they will be allowed to approach in that guise."

When the bison went, so did the timber wolves. Henry Rowe Schoolcraft wrote in his journal in 1820 of a journey up the Wisconsin River from Prairie du Chien to Portage: "The largest wild animals now found along its banks are the deer, the bear and the fox. The elk, and buffalo have been driven off many years ago."

New Relationship

Students at Michigan's two largest universities are manifesting a healthy concern over an unhealthy situation. They are mobilizing to fight attacks on the environment. They are adopting an activist approach to environmental pollution in all of its ugly forms.

At the University of Michigan, students have organized something called ENACT, which stands for Environmental Action for Survival. Members of that organization are urging students at other colleges and universities in the state to hold teach-ins on the environmental crisis similar to one scheduled at the University of Michigan March 11-14. Nationwide observances on the perils of pollution are being planned for April 22, and ENACT wants people on campuses and in communities throughout Michigan to set the date aside as one on which to "critically evaluate the environmental crisis now posing a threat to man's survival."

"Everyone has a stake in this crisis," said William G. Manning, a student in the U-M School of Natural Resources who has been appointed ENACT coordinator for Michigan campuses. "Young people can no longer sit back and let our society poison itself to death. The young will inherit the earth and are not going to be meek about its destruction. Our goal is action — prompt priority action by concerned students and communities everywhere — to turn the tide of environmental destruction."

The teach-ins will be aimed at arousing citizens to the threats to the environment. Teach-ins may include rallies, speeches, panel discussions, seminars, workshops and community projects. Typical projects for student-community involvement suggested by Manning include small-scale park development, cleaning up a river or other natural area, more drafting suggested legislation for correcting local environmental abuses.

Meanwhile, over at the Michigan State University campus a three-day symposium on pollution entitled "Man, the Endangered Species" was being conducted. No less than 3,500 students — repeat 3,500 — packed the MSU auditorium on a cold night to hear U. S. Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis.) deliver the keynote address. Nelson, who spoke on behalf of the nationwide teach-in on April 22, said he was "amazed" at the size of the audience. He said he had expected perhaps 100 to 150 students to be in attendance.

Not to be outdone by their counterparts at the rival University of Michigan, students at MSU formed an organization of their own with a catchy alphabet title. They called it E-QUAL, standing for "Environmental Quality." The group is selling tickets on a stuffed seven-foot Kodiak bear to raise funds to support the teach-in and other environmental action programs.

These programs of the U-M and MSU students reflect the new awareness of environmental dangers that is emerging across the land. It is a phenomenon that spans the generation gap and covers the entire spectrum of political philosophy. Adults as well as youths are evidencing an uneasy interest in problems of the environment.

The desire to correct these problems has been displayed by such disparate groups as hippies and chamber of commerce members. The president of the United States is asking a national commitment. Governors of nearly every state have made appeals. Labor organizations are so concerned that the Canadian Council of the United Auto Workers (UAW) voted to make pollution a strike issue in contract talks this year, subject to the same economic pressure as other collective bargaining demands. On the other hand, the reigning Ford of the Ford Motor Co. has pledged a $60 million attack on pollution, voluntarily.

It signals a new — and welcome — era in man's relationship to the physical world around him.

The Family Lawyer

Finished with her shopping, Mrs. Wilson headed for the automatic doors at the front of the market. But by mistake, she approached the IN side instead of the OUT side. Just then someone activated the IN door, which swung against Mrs. Wilson and knocked her down.

In due course, she filed a damage suit against the store.

"It is true the doors were labeled 'IN' and 'OUT,'" she said in court. "But the words were placed above eye level, where they were not easy to see. No wonder I got mixed up."

However, the court denied her claim. The judge said the store was entitled to assume that a customer would pay closer attention to where she was going.

Generally speaking, the law expects the normal shopper to be able to navigate safely out of the normal exit. As another court said, in denying damages to a tall man who bumped his head on a short door:

"The height of the doorway was obvious. It was not a source of danger to a person exercising reasonable care."

Yet, some doors are not obvious at all. A number of recent cases have involved all-glass doors, which sometimes give what the law calls "an illusion of space." Courts have usually held that if a person bumps unwittingly against such a door, the management may be held responsible.

But this applies only if the door is truly deceptive in appearance. If markings or handles give fair warning that the door is there, then the store cannot be blamed by the person who walks into it.

Whatever type of door it is, the management does have an affirmative duty to keep it in good working order. Thus:

A woman was seriously injured in a revolving door when someone speeded it around with a push. Investigation revealed that the brake brushes, which were supposed to hold the speed down, were all worn out.

Accordingly, a court ruled that the management was liable for the woman's injury. Its negligent upkeep, said the court, had changed a safe exit into a place of danger.

Curtains Over Vietnam, ...And Everything Else

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Charles A. Weil is the author of a book called "Curtains Over Vietnam" which argues that the American people have never been told the strategic reasons why we must not be pushed out of South Vietnam. The third copy he mailed to this column eventually reached its destination, along with a notation on the flyleaf that "the mails are as execrable as the 'paper curtain' described in the book." There is a moral here, and it is not one that augurs well for Weil's efforts to educate Americans in the balance of power principles that must underlie any successful attempt to keep the great "heartland" nations of Soviet Russia and Red China from overrunning the "maritime fringe" countries (Western Europe, Southeast Asia) and so forcing the U. S. to become an isolated "Fortress America."

What Weil has to say about American security interests is quite sound. We fought two world wars to keep the "fringe peoples" of Western Europe from being pushed into the sea by militaristic totalitarians. And this was at a time before the development of the nuclear missile when we could have afforded the luxury of isolation. Today we would pay a much greater penalty by being pushed into an "island" position between a Sovietized Europe and a Communist Asia.

But to get back to the question of the U. S. mails. What Weil is saying is that he has been having difficulty getting his message across in a country that has become bogged down in its inefficiencies.

He is hopeful that the "gulls" (his word for the doves) can somehow be defeated by an educational campaign to present the real strategic truth about the importance of the Southeastern Asian "hinge" on which swings the whole question of access to the Indian Ocean from the Pacific. But I greatly fear that he will have to contend with very much more than any alleged "execrable" performance on the part of the U. S. Post Office.

The degeneration that Weil attributes to the mails is just one facet of a total degeneration in the whole quality of American life. This degeneration extends to the teaching of history in the schools. To present sound conceptions of strategy Weil needs historians who know something about the importance of the balance of power to a free world.

I am sure that we have a few such historians tucked away in our colleges and high schools. But if we do have them, why haven't they been reaching the demonstrators who would actually welcome a Communist takeover in Southeast Asia? Even if Weil's book were to be placed in every college library in the country would there be a way to get its contents into the heads of a generation that, to quote one exasperated scholar, wants to "feel rather than think, and to experience rather than read"?

What Weil is up against is underscored by the rather appalling performances put on by the learned societies of America at their annual December gatherings. Philosophers should know something about the intrinsic dependence of U. S. freedoms on the world balance of power.

But the eastern division of the American Philosophical Association, after a couple of hours of shouting and recriminations, ended its deliberations (if that is the word for it) by voting to recommend a quick pull-out from Vietnam. If a refugee from Nazi tyranny, Professor Aaron Gurwitsch of the New School for Social Research in New York, hadn't made an impassioned fight to tone down the foreign policy statement of the philosophers, the resolution would have added a total condemnation of U. S. foreign policy to the call for a Vietnam withdrawal.

It didn't matter so much that the Modern Language Association meeting was also dominated by professors who would certainly do their best to keep Weil's theories about national survival from getting a fair hearing; after all, the members of this association don't teach history.

But the historians themselves, at the annual meeting of the American Historical Association in Washington, D. C., gave no reassurance that Weil would be adequately understood in the average U. S. university faculty lounge.

One out of three of the history professors voted for a resolution calling the "Nixon-Mitchell" policies "murderous" and demanding that the historians demonstrate in front of the Department of Justice building against the "harassment of the Black Panthers" and the continuation of the Vietnam War.

The trouble, Weil, is not only that we are slow in the mails. We are also, as a nation, becoming quite slow in the head.

Letters OF COUNCILS

Having read Mr. Bink's article (re Decision Making) and the Press' commentary on the subject, I concur with the Press.

Since the beginning of organized government, fraternal organizations, school boards, labor unions, corporations, and even churches have made use of the "executive session". And always will.

For a governing body to sit before its constituents arguing like fish mongers on a controversial subject could create only chaos and unnecessary emotionalism to its constituents.

If Mr. Bink and his fellow council members haven't had their pre-meeting executive sessions and don't plan to, they may well qualify for interment in a special National Shrine.

This practice, however is open to abuse. If the executive decision closes the door on subsequent inquiry and dissent, it is evil.

The underlying reason for unrest and disregard for law and order in this country, I believe, is the result of abuse of this practice.

The average citizen feels he has lost control of the government and isn't far off in his thinking.

While I do not impugn the intentions or integrity of Mr. Bink, I do question his memory.

I recall with humility and shame the council meeting of March, 1969.

I, in company with several citizens, attended this meeting specifically to question the manner in which the award for management of the Escanaba Airport was being made.

Among other things was the awarding of a contract without an advertised competitive bid, considering that the awardee would be managing a facility funded by federal, state and local monies.

When the issue became open for discussion, as is customary, and with hundreds of radio listeners tuned in, the Mayor stopped us cold by deferring action until the end of the meeting.

I do not recall any member of the council defending our right to speak.

We arose and left the chambers. It is our belief that the contract was already signed, sealed and delivered when the council members first emerged from the anteroom. Its executive decision was irrevocable.

So, Mr. Bink, the executive session exists, whether you choose to recognize it or not.

Basically, it is a sound practice so long as Mr. Citizen has the right, by inquiry and dissent, to make the final determination.

He elected you.

Opening lead—king of diamonds.

Good defense is generally regarded as the most difficult part of the game, but just in case you don't think so, here is a hand to test your mettle.

Let's say you're East and partner starts out with the A-K-Q of diamonds, South ruffing the third one. Declarer leads a low heart and you win dummy's queen with the ace. What would you return?

You would probably lead the jack of spades, but, when the hand was played, East (Charles Coon, well known New York expert) returned the six of clubs!

As a result of this extraordinary play, declarer went down one when he later took a spade finesse that lost.

Now let's suppose that Coon had returned the jack of spades instead of the six of clubs. Declarer would then have made the contract with proper play.

He would go up with the ace of spades and draw three more rounds of trumps to produce this five-card position:

When South now led the seven of hearts, West would be in bad shape for a discard. He would have to discard a spade or a club, and in either case declarer would win the remaining tricks with the aid of a club finesse.

Most declarers find it extremely difficult to execute a squeeze, but imagine how much more difficult it is for a defender to recognize that a squeeze against partner is imminent unless he takes precisely the right step to break it up. Certainly Coon's club return in the present case was nothing short of magnificent.

Ann Landers Suggests Bachelor Stay In Mom's Arms

Dear Ann Landers: I've been going with an attractive bachelor for seven months. He is considered a good catch, but he is 14 years my senior (I am 22) and I'm a little uneasy about a man of his financial status who still lives with his mother.

Last night he said, half-joking, "I'd marry you if you agreed, in writing, to do these five things." I asked, "What are the five things?" He then whipped out a piece of paper and handed me a pencil. Here is the list of requirements:

(1) I will change the bed linen every night.

(2) I will wear makeup to bed—no hair rollers or face cream.

(3) I will get dressed in the morning—no bathrobes or housecoats at breakfast.

(4) If I snore, I agree to have surgery and get the snore fixed.

(5) I will not speak in the morning until I am spoken to.

His requests are not unreasonable, but I resent his attitude. What do you think?—Pie Face

Dear Lila: I think you ought to let his mother keep him for another 36 years.

Dear Ann Landers: A close friend of mine has a daughter who was always sensitive and never got along well with children her own age. Lila kept to herself mostly or tagged along with her mother.

Last year Lila, who was then 15, attached herself to a kind-hearted boy who felt sorry for her. After a while, he saw she was getting too serious and tried to break off with her. Lila kept chasing him and he couldn't escape from her clutches. Now she's gone and got herself pregnant.

The boy is only sixteen and marriage is out of the question. So is support. He doesn't have anything and neither do his folks.

Lila's mother wants her to keep the baby because she thinks it will help her grow up. I've been asked for my advice and want your views.—No Ann Landers

Dear No: It is impossible for a girl to get herself pregnant. She had to have some help. Even though the boy is only 16, he should not be considered an innocent bystander. A lawyer can decide what his legal responsibilities are.

I hope Lila will give the child up for adoption. She sounds unstable and immature. Urge the mother to take the girl to a counselor. Both mother and daughter need professional help.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter brought her college roommate home for the holidays. We don't know much about the girl, except that she comes from a wealthy family.

Inner City Kids Welcome Officer

DETROIT (AP) — Sometimes, Patrolman Elmer Sanders Jr. warns girls, "We have picked up some as young as 12 out on the street for accosting and soliciting."

At other times, he tells youths from impoverished families in Detroit's inner city that "most junkies die before they're 35 if they get on hard stuff and they don't die very pretty."

His message is getting through, if the 132 eighth graders at Longfellow Junior High School, located in the area of Detroit's 1967 riots, are any indication.

In a closed vote, they selected Sanders to speak at the mid-year commencement exercises today. He was chosen over Willie Horton and Wayne County Auditor Richard Austin, who finished second in the Detroit's mayors race this year. All three are black.

"Kids Beautiful"

"The kids are beautiful," says the 24-year-old Sanders, who is on a scooter patrol designed to establish better rapport with the community in the precinct, which has a high crime rate. "They just take understanding."

"Everyone wants to make it," he said, "but they see things on the poorer side and the possibility of not making it. That's why it makes it easier to turn to stuff like dope," he said.

Sanders, who grew up in a poor section of Detroit, says of the youths that "I talk their language and tell them of specific incidents they can relate to."

"The kids get enough sugar-coating in school."

"You have to be dumb to figure they don't know what marijuana is and where they can get it," he said.

Make Associations

"I know I'm not anyone to look up to especially," he said. "But if these kids can make this association with me instead of with pimps or whores or wine-heads, I've got to feel that maybe we're accomplishing something."

Sanders, who served with the 101st Airborne in Vietnam, said when he enters a school "I want to establish most of all that I can be a policeman and a human being too. Many of those kids never make that connection."

"I even refer to myself as a pig, just to get across how you can lose your humanity when you start name-calling."

David Anderson, 14, a Longfellow student, said "Everybody always tells us to be good. But Officer Sanders tells us why and what can happen to you if you're not. He doesn't try to hide any facts from us."

Two Injured As Snowmobile Rams Parked Auto

A Cornell youth is listed in satisfactory condition this morning at St. Francis Hospital as a result of a snowmobile-car accident that happened Tuesday afternoon.

State Police reported that Thomas Barron, 15, Rte. 1, Cornell, was headed north on County Rd. D-19 just north of County Rd. 416 when he ran into the rear of a parked car. Janet Barron, 14-year-old sister of the driver, a passenger on the snow machine, also sustained injuries but did not require hospitalization. She was treated in emergency at St. Francis and released.

Troopers said both youths were taken to St. Francis by ambulance. Damage to the snowmobile was extensive, according to report.

Daniel Cooper To Seek Senate

LANSING (AP)—Rep. Daniel Cooper, D-Oak Park, today said he will be a candidate for the state Senate in the event Sen. Sander Levin, D-Berkley, does not run for reelection.

Levin, while retaining his Senate seat, resigned as Senate Minority Leader to explore the possibility of seeking the Democratic nomination for governor.

Cooper, a member of the House for six years, has served as assistant floor leader.

C&NW Asks To Reduce Passenger Train Service

The Chicago & North Western Railway Co. has asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to discontinue the equivalent of one of its three daily roundtrip passenger trains between Chicago and Green Bay, Wis.

The proposal would eliminate train No. 125 from Chicago to Milwaukee, No. 121 from Milwaukee to Green Bay and No. 214 from Green Bay to Chicago, effective Feb. 22.

Elimination of 121 and 214 would end passenger service between Milwaukee and Green Bay via Port Washington, Sheboygan and Manitowoc except on Sundays and holidays.

Northbound train 121 leaves Milwaukee at 8:20 p.m., arriving in Green Bay at 11:11 p.m. Southbound train 214 leaves Green Bay at 8:20 a.m. and arrives in Milwaukee at 10:15 a.m. Train 214 previously served the Upper Peninsula before it was discontinued last summer.

Bus Not Affected

Rail service to the Upper Peninsula was replaced by Greyhound bus service which makes railroad connections at the C&NW depot in Green Bay. The proposed discontinuation of trains between Green Bay and Milwaukee would not be expected to have any effect on the bus service to the Upper Peninsula.

The bus from the U.P. to Green Bay arrives at the railroad depot at 4:15 p.m., connecting with a C&NW train which is not included in the proposal to discontinue service. The bus to the U.P. from Green Bay leaves Green Bay at 4:35 p.m.

A spokesman for the Lake-shore Division of the carrier, with headquarters here, said bus transportation would be substituted daily, including Sundays and holidays. A Greyhound bus will leave Milwaukee at 8:50 p.m. and arrive here at 11:59 p.m. No Green Bay-to-Milwaukee bus service will be available.

Losses Cited

Elimination of the two trains will leave Green Bay with two trains between here and Milwaukee, two others from Milwaukee to Green Bay daily, and one each way on Sundays and holidays.

The Sunday and holiday train will operate via the Lakeshore while the daily train will make stops in the Fox Valley.

The railway said passenger volume to and from the three communities declined to an average of 36 per day in 1969.

H. A. Lense, director of commuter and passenger services, said the railway lost $300,000 on the trains slated for discontinuance. "It was a heavier loss than we can afford to bear. For every $2.48 we took in on these trains last year, we spent $4.48 in direct expenses," he said.

The schedule change must be approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Escanaba Man Held In Threat At Menominee

MENOMINEE—A 21-year-old Escanaba man was arrested by Menominee authorities Tuesday and scheduled to appear before District Judge Russell Bradley today in connection with bomb threats made to the Menominee High School Tuesday.

Charles H. Carlson, 1306 Stephenson Ave., Escanaba, was arrested early Tuesday afternoon after a fourth telephone call made to the school was traced by the telephone company to a telephone in a north Menominee tavern.

Police converged on the tavern and arrested Carlson.

Officers said the formal charge against him was being prepared this morning.

First call to the school came at 12:05 p. m., police said, and it was followed by calls at 12:25 p. m. and again at 1:15 p. m. After the third call, police notified the telephone company and equipment to trace incoming calls was installed.

Officers said they were ready when the fourth call came to the school at 1:30 p. m.

The first three calls, according to Principal Gary Burley, claimed that the bomb would detonate in the school at 1:30 p. m., but on the fourth call the time was pushed back to 2 p. m. Burley ordered the school evacuated after the 1:15 call and Burley and Police Chief Erwin Mouritzen were the only persons in the building when the final call was made.

Menominee Police, Menominee County sheriff's officers and State Police worked on the case in cooperation with school and telephone officials.

Police said Carlson was taken to Menominee high school following his arrest where Burley said his voice was similar to that of the threatening caller. Police said Carlson later admitted making the calls. He had been drinking, officers reported.

Hal March Dies At Age Of 49

HOLLYWOOD (P)—Hal March, the actor who found fame as master of ceremonies of the television quiz show "64,000 Question" in the 1950s, is dead at 49.

March succumbed to pneumonia Monday at the University of California Medical Center. Last November, in the same hospital, surgeons had removed his right lung because of cancer.

Nursing Home Safety Scanned

LANSING (AP)—An investigation by Michigan probers into a nursing home fire in Ohio may lead to some changes in Michigan standards for fire safety precautions at nursing homes.

Sgt. William Rucinski of the State Police fire marshal's division and Robert Distel of the State Department of Public Health went to Marietta, Ohio, to check into the Harmer Nursing Home fire which claimed more than two dozen lives.

They said any statement as to the cause of the fire would be premature, since the investigation still is continuing. Tentative findings, they added, indicate there may be some need for changes in Michigan's code.

All information obtained will be given to the State Fire Safety Board, which makes the final determination on proposed changes in fire safety regulations.

Capt. Edward Lenon, commander of the fire marshal's division, said continued progress is being made on the installation of sprinkler systems in some 140 older Michigan nursing homes which predate the use of fire resistant construction.

Occasionally, he said, a nursing home owner decides to close the home rather than comply with an order to install such systems.

Lenon said despite some 70 such closings within the past three years, a net increase of nearly 3,300 beds in new and expanded nursing homes show a continual growth of such facilities in Michigan.

New Sex Course To Be Offered

DEARBORN HEIGHTS (AP)—A new, more conservative sex education program will be taught at this suburb's Crestwood schools, replacing a program which was discontinued last June following strong opposition by a parents group.

Following recommendations by a citizens committee last month, the new program gives parents a stronger voice and eliminates controversial units on reproduction previously taught in elementary schools.

List Programs

LANSING (AP) — The State Board of Education reports it will distribute a listing of all occupational programs offered in Michigan Community and Junior Colleges to guidance personnel in every state school district. The inventory tells what job training programs leading to immediate employment are available in the 29 Michigan two-year colleges.

Children Checked For Kidney Disease

Growing concern over the increase in kidney diseases among Michigan residents, including many in the Upper Peninsula, has resulted in stepped-up activity by the Kidney Foundation of Michigan and state and local health authorities, according to Mary L. Creten, M. D., director of the Delta-Menominee School District Health Department.

Dr. Creten said one of the most important projects is the screening of approximately 3,000 pupils in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades in an effort at early detection of kidney disease symptoms.

This screening, now under way in Escanaba, has as one objective the detection of childhood nephrosis, a condition in which there is a large and abnormal loss of protein into the urine because of kidney damage. This produces low protein concentration in the blood, which in turn causes a generalized swelling in the body.

Although possible also in adults, nephrosis most frequently affects children in the 1½-4 year age range. It also affects boys about twice as frequently as girls. No cause for it is known, and no method of predicting its imminence is available.

A previously healthy youngster, either following a mild cold or with no known preceding significant event, may lose some of his energy and may lose his appetite. The first body swelling to be noticed is often under the eyes on awakening.

At first, this may disappear as the day wears on only to return the next morning. Later the abdomen begins to increase in girth, and the feet and ankles become puffy. If no treatment is given, the degree of body swelling can become massive.

Eyes may be swollen almost shut and the abdomen distorted. Swelling is about the only easily identifiable symptom which announces to the parents that something is wrong.

Urine Checked
When the child is seen by a doctor, the simplest test that will suggest the diagnosis is examination of the urine. The most striking finding is the presence of large amounts of protein (often called albumin in reports).

Other tests, Dr. Creten said, done by family physicians, are used to determine the presence of different types of kidney trouble, including blood tests, blood pressure, and the examination of urine specimens under the microscope.

Treatment with various drugs is being studied, but thus far no complete answer for all kinds of childhood nephrosis has been found, Dr. Creten declared.

With this leakage of protein from the blood into the urine the blood proteins are reduced and "osmotic pressure" is lost, a pressure which tends to draw fluids in body tissues back into the blood vessels. Fluids therefore accumulate in the tissues, and swelling results.

Other tests, Dr. Creten said, done by family physicians, are used to determine the presence of different types of kidney trouble, including blood tests, blood pressure, and the examination of urine specimens under the microscope.

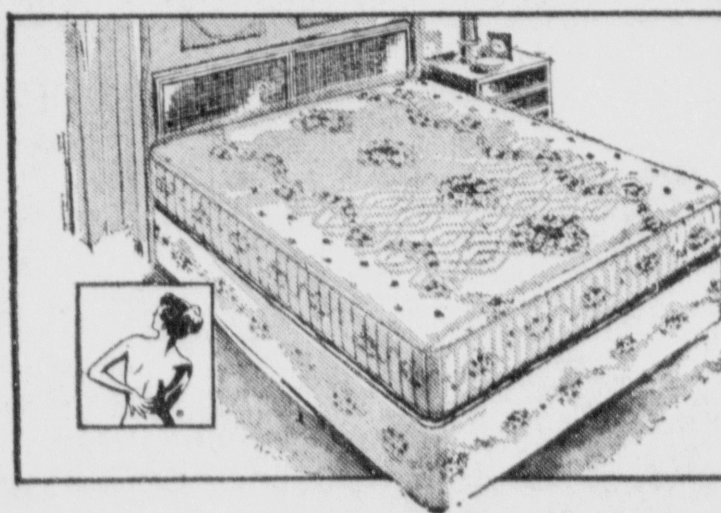

Treatment with various drugs is being studied, but thus far no complete answer for all kinds of childhood nephrosis has been found, Dr. Creten declared.

Pre-Marriage Course Offered

Registrations are being accepted for the course "Toward Marriage Program" which is being offered by the Community School.

Any junior and senior grade high school students and married couples interested may contact Mrs. Carl Makel and Mrs. Earl LeBrasseur at the high school or the Community School office.

The first session will be held Feb. 3 at 7 p.m. in the library of the high school.

Urban Steinmetz, executive director of the Family Enrichment Bureau in Escanaba, will conduct the course. Steinmetz is a Northern Michigan University graduate and has an extensive background in sociology and marriage counseling. He is the author of several magazine articles and books.

Purpose of the marriage course, according to Community School Director Richard Bonifas, is to give young people the opportunity of facing marriage as it really exists, to prepare themselves by learning to talk about marriage honestly and openly. The major emphasis in all six sessions will be the understanding men and women can achieve through honest and open communication.

The sessions will cover such topics as Marriage is Real; A Formula for Building Love in the Home; Improving Communication; The Total Climax of Love; Thoughts on Child-Rearing; Sex Education in the Home.

Milliken OK's Federal Grant

LANSING (AP)—Gov. William Milliken has approved a federal economic opportunity grant of $1,152,222 for the Mayor's Committee for Human Resources Development in Detroit for a full year Head Start program. The program will serve some 880 disadvantaged children with 44 classes in 35 centers. Also approved by the governor was an $181,589 anti-poverty grant for the United Community Services action Program of Grand Rapids for a full year head start program. The program will serve some 210 children.

Obituary

GEORGE KRALIK

Funeral services were held Tuesday at 10 a.m. from the St. Francis de Sales Church for George Kralik, 72, who died Jan. 17 at his home, 530 Alger Ave. Father Arnold Grambow, assistant pastor of St. Francis de Sales, officiated at the services.

Pallbearers were Ed Busch, John Welch, Bert Barr, Andrew Selling, Don Dragos and Edward Toyra. Burial will take place in the Lakeview Cemetery in the spring.

MANISTIQUE 'Understand-In' Set For Monday

An "Understand-In"—a unique approach to helping teenagers and parents understand each other — will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Manistique High School.

The activity is being sponsored jointly by the Community School and Cooperative Extension Service. Dr. Eugene Peisner, extension specialist in Family Life, Michigan State University, will lead the discussion much as he done at similar discussion in lower Michigan.

Ingrid Tervonen, Area Extension Home Economist, and Donald Brown, Area 4-H Youth Agent, will be on hand to help with the event.

Expanding on the purpose of the "Understand-In," Dr. Peisner said it "provides an opportunity for parents, teenagers, and/or pre-teens to communicate openly with each other, to inform themselves about some of their personal and family ways of communicating to better judge their effectiveness; and to reshape communication and relationship patterns in their own lives and family living."

Further information may be obtained by contacting the Cooperative Extension Office or the Community School.

Every parent planning to attend is asked to bring at least one pre-teen or teenager or every young person should bring their parents, according to the announcement.

Chinese Year Of The Dog Starts With February 6

EAST LANSING (AP) — According to the Chinese, the new year doesn't start until Feb. 6 and will be "the year of the dog", reports Dr. Shao Chang Lee, professor emeritus at Michigan State University.

Dr. Lee said some Chinese mystics interpret this to be a "year of the people" in which the poor continue to suffer while the well-to-do blunder, fumble and even lose the happiness they seek.

"But it is to be a year," Lee said, "of softening discord and hard heartedness, of restoration of mental health and of the development of new ideas in such fields as science, technology, education, art and the transportation system."

It will be a year, he predicted, "for the awakened to double their efforts in tackling problems of common concern."

Trinity Church Members Hold Annual Meet

The annual meeting of Trinity Lutheran Church, Stonington, was held on Sunday, Jan. 18 following the morning worship service. Dinner was served by the members of the Ladies Aid.

The pastor, in his report, reviewed the work of the congregation and reports from the secretaries of the Ladies Aid and Sunday School were also reviewed. The report of the youth work was reviewed in a report prepared by Roland Jacobson who directed a summer youth program.

The total income from the church and its organizations for 1969 was over $5,800 and the total expenditures $5,500 of which almost $700 was given toward benevolences. In 1969 Trinity built an addition onto the church which contains rest rooms and cloak rooms at a cost of a little over $3,000. Volunteer labor from many in the community made this possible.

A proposed operational budget for 1970 of $3,830 was accepted by the congregation.

Elected to the Church Council were: Ronald Thorsen, Orville Peterson, Wallace Thorsen. Mrs. James Muffler was elected congregational secretary and Mrs. Esther Wils was elected to the auditing committee.

The congregation voted to participate in the financial campaign for the building of a Religious Fine-Arts Building at Carthage College, Kenosha, Wis. It was also voted to install new carpeting in the chancel, aisle and hallways of the church.

George A. Olson serves as pastor of the congregation; George Jacobson, treasurer; Mrs. Roy Erickson, Sunday School superintendent; Mrs. Robert Leadman, Ladies Aid president and Lorraine Jacobson, organist.

A JULY wedding is planned by Lillian Guertin and Stephen H. Keith, whose engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Guertin, Sr., 119 Bunden St., Oak View, Calif. Her fiancé is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Keith of Clinton, Iowa, and he is stationed with the U.S. Navy at Port Kueneme. Miss Guertin is a senior at Venture High School.

Chatham Area Senior Citizens Plan Dance

The combined Chatham, Eben, Skandia and Trenary Senior Citizens Club met at 1 p. m. Jan. 19 at the Chatham Townhall.

During the business meeting a discussion was held on a telephone calling service for senior citizens. A case was cited where a person's life could have been saved had an adequate calling service been in operation. More study will be made on the project.

Plans were made for a senior citizen dance Feb. 14 at the Chatham Town Hall for the benefit of an anticipated youth center in Chatham. Lunch will be provided by the senior citizens. Music will be by Arnold Hill and Hugo Mariin.

After the business meeting members enjoyed games and lunch was served by the Skandia area ladies. The next regular meeting of the combined clubs will be Feb. 16 at the Trenary Townhall. The Trenary ladies will provide the lunch.

ANNOUNCEMENT IS MADE by Mr. and Mrs. James LaFleur of 1724 Montana Ave., Gladstone, of the engagement of their daughter, Cindy, to L. Cpl. David Lancour, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Lancour, Rte. 1, Gladstone. The bride-elect is a senior at Gladstone High School and her fiancé is a 1967 graduate of the same school. He is presently serving with the U. S. Marine Corps, stationed at Camp Lejeune, N. C. The wedding will take place June 20. (Lee's Studio)

Artificial Hip 'Routine' In Europe, But Not U.S.

CHICAGO (AP) — Replacement of diseased hips with artificial devices has proved successful in Europe, but it's going to be a while before this becomes a routine operation in the United States.

The reason is that the cement to hold the devices in place has not yet been approved for this use by the Food and Drug Administration. Research Allowed Restrictions are not so severe in Great Britain, where most of the work on artificial hips was done, and continental European countries. Thousands of these operations have been performed there over the past decade.

Two dozen U.S. research institutions have been granted permission to use the artificial hip requiring a special cement and several hundred hip replacements have been done in this country.

Dr. Mark B. Coventry, head of the department of orthopaedics at Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., said there is no indication as to when the fast-setting cement, called methyl-methacrylate, will become generally available.

Dr. Coventry was moderator of a symposium on surgery and hip disease at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Orthopaedics.

Past Problems

He said he strongly approves the FDA restrictions, and called attention to past difficulties which have resulted from too early approval of drugs.

European surgeons have had no problems with the cement used in the hip surgery, Dr. Coventry said. The concern in the United States has been that the cement might degenerate and cause cancer, he said.

He pointed out that dentists have used this same cement in making tooth inlays for a number of years, and that it also has been used for skull repairs in brain surgery.

The most successful artificial hip is one in which a stainless steel ball on a shaft is inserted into the thigh bone and cemented in place. This fits into a strong plastic socket which is attached by cement to the pelvis.

The first gasoline-driven road vehicle built in North America was made by Americans J. Frank and Charles E. Duryea in 1893.

Wharton Concern Is For Individual

EAST LANSING (AP)—Deep concern for the individual and the quality of lives was expressed by Dr. Clifton R. Wharton Jr., new Michigan State University president, in a talk before the MSU Faculty Club Tuesday.

Wharton received a standing ovation in his first public address since he assumed the MSU presidency. An overflow crowd of more than 400 attended the meeting Tuesday.

"I believe that human focus should take precedence over all other dimensions of a university," Wharton declared.

"People are important," he said. "But it is more than people collectively or in the abstract. Each individual is central because of his humanness."

"In a university we need to remind ourselves that we are individuals, not merely professors, students, administrators, cooks and bookkeepers," Wharton said. "We are persons, not merely blacks, whites, Chinese, Nisei, Chicanos."

Population, technology and communication, he said, threaten to reduce a man's sense of his individual identity. These very forces and the accelerating rate of change created by man and science also present a mandate to universities to attack the problems which change, in part, precipitates.

Setting forth his philosophy, Wharton declared: "I believe every man is entitled to an equal opportunity to accomplish his fullest inherent potential."

Education is a central component to realization of this right, he said. Society, he said, is being called upon to assure this right to each individual.

"To undertake the presidency of a major university in this age is an awesome responsibility, especially at this period in history," Wharton said. "To undertake that of Michigan State University with its great history of creative service to the needs of man is even more awesome," he added.

Calvary Church Holds Annual Membership Meet

RAPID RIVER — The annual meeting of Calvary Lutheran Church, Rapid River, was held Sunday, Jan. 11 following a brief worship service.

The pastor's report reviewed church work of the past year church organizations and the pastor's work, and gave to the congregation a challenge to remain faithful to the total program of the church in this changing world.

The business of the congregation included accepting the reports of the treasurers of the church and its organizations. To be noted was that the total income in the congregation last year was $19,800 and the total expenditures $18,700, of which $4,300 was given for benevolent causes in the church. An operational budget of $18,000 for the year 1970 was accepted.

Elected to the church council for a two year term was Lloyd Stenlund; three year term, Carlyle Holmgren, Leonard Thorsen, George Weberg and Axel Johnson. Mrs. Nickolas Montgomery was elected to the nominating committee and Mrs. Richard Dye to the auditing committee. Mrs. Russell Case was elected congregational secretary.

Resolutions passed included, a vote to participate in the capital fund campaign for a Religious-Fine Arts Center at Carthage College, Kenosha, Wis., and the Christian education unit. A committee to study the last proposal will be named by the church council.

Calvary Church has a confirmed membership of 194 and a baptized membership of 340. George A. Olson serves the congregation. 1970 marks the 70th anniversary of the congregation and an appropriate observance is being planned.

ANNOUNCEMENT IS MADE by Mr. and Mrs. William S. Eis, 315 S. 17th St. of the engagement of their daughter, Cheryl Ann, to Daniel Pfeffer, son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Pfeffer, 1401 N. 23rd St. The bride-elect is a 1968 graduate of Escanaba Area High School and is presently attending Bay de Noc Community College. Her fiancé is a 1967 graduate of Holy Name High School and he is also attending Bay de Noc College. He is employed by the United Parcel Service. The wedding will take place on June 20. (Lee's Studio)

Mrs. Rodney Beauchamp

Jane E. Papenbrock, R. Beauchamp Wed

Jane Ellen Papenbrock and Rodney James Beauchamp exchanged wedding vows during a 2:30 p. m. service at St. Mary's Church, Elyria, Ohio on Dec. 13. The Rev. Paul Wysocinski officiated and organist was Mrs. Louis Kolopus.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Papenbrock, 39025 E. River Road, Elyria and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Mary Beauchamp of Escanaba.

Attending the couple were Mr. and Mrs. Dave Barnette, best man and matron of honor and bridesmaids were Kathy Gentry and Mary Jean Edwards. Seating the guests were Edward Fridenstein and Mike Williams.

School Bus And Plow Crash, 15 Students Hurt

HOUGHTON (AP) — Fifteen school children and one adult were injured today when a school bus collided with a snow plow just west of Houghton.

The injured were taken to a hospital where all but six were treated and released. With the exception of the driver, those hospitalized were in fair to good condition. The driver was listed in serious condition.

Police quoted the driver, Walter Stone, 60, of nearby South Range, as saying the snow plow was stopped on the side of M 26, three miles west of Houghton, when the crash occurred.

The school bus, nearing the crest of a hill, apparently skidded on ice and careened into the snow plow, police said.

The students were en route to South Range Elementary School and Jeffers High School in Painesdale.

Theft Of Coins Brings Charges Against 4 Youths

David L. Brunette, 17, of 1423 N. Lincoln Rd., is to obtain counsel and then return to district court in connection with a hearing on a charge of breaking and entering, a circuit court offense.

Brunette and three juvenile Escanaba boys are charged in connection with the theft of between $500 and $600 in coins from a closet in the Al Dagenais home at 1410 N. 20th St. last week.

Escanaba police said the home was entered by forcing open a basement window and that the coins were in bags in a bedroom closet.

The three juveniles, one 15 and two 16-years-old, are being referred to probate court.

5 Millionth Phone

LANSING (AP) — Michigan's 5 millionth telephone will be installed some time this year, predicts Willis Ward of Detroit, chairman of the State Public Service Commission. Ward said Michigan had more than 4.8 million telephones in service last year compared to some 4.5 million the previous year. Based on this rate of increase, the total should pass the 5 million mark this year, Ward predicted.

Hike In Interest Ceiling Clears Big Bay Bond Sale

GARDEN — Frank Stupak, superintendent of the Big Bay de Noc school district, said today that a $1.2 million bond issue to pay for construction of a new school for the district probably will be placed on the bond market for bids during the first week of February.

The Michigan Municipal Finance Commission Tuesday approved an interest rate increase from six to eight per cent for a number of bond issues in the state, including the Big Bay de Noc issue, clearing the way for sale of the bonds.

The district has tried to sell the bonds, but has been unable to do so because of a six per cent ceiling on interest which could be paid under state law.

Although the hike in the ceiling has made it probable that the district will be able to obtain a bid within the limits, Stupak said the district because of the delay in the sale of the bonds is faced with another problem.

The bond market is not very favorable, he pointed out, with issues selling in excess of seven per cent.

"Our board will have to decide if we can afford it," he said.

Among the things the Board of Education will have to consider are the construction bids received last year, which were within the costs estimates prepared by the architects.

Stupak said the school board met with contractors Tuesday night and obtained an extension of the quoted prices until after the district receives bids on its bond issue. Without an extension, the bids would have expired Jan. 31.

Henslee Heads Scout Finance Committee

The appointment of Forrest Henslee of Escanaba as chairman of the finance committee of the Red Buck District, Hiawathaland Council, Boy Scouts of America, was announced this week by Jay Jennings, district chairman.

Henslee and Jennings will meet with other members of the district committee, institutional representatives and neighborhood commissioners Thursday, Jan. 22 at 7:30 p.m. at the Chamber of Commerce building.

The National Boy Power '76 program and plans for the February celebration of scouting's 60th anniversary in the United States will be discussed. All district officers are to attend.

Horton Bay Is Pellston Rival

HORTON BAY (AP) — Michigan's official overnight low was 29 degrees below zero at Pellston but residents of this tiny Charlevoix County community say several persons recorded unofficial temperature readings as low as 40 below here.

And, several residents of Harbor Springs in Emmet County reported unofficial readings ranging from 30 to 40 below zero.

A Federal Aviation Administration spokesman said the official low at Pellston was measured several feet above the ground but the low at ground level was 37 below zero.

construction materials, etc., indefinite extensions on construction bids are impossible and Stupak said the Board of Education will have to decide whether or not it would be most economical for the district to accept bond issue bids now—when the interest rates may be high but the construction bids are favorable—or to wait six months in hopes that the bond interest rates may drop low enough to cover the rising construction costs.

The districts bonding consultants—Stauder & Barch of Detroit—are presently preparing the bond issue for bidding.

Parochial Differences Delay School Aid Debate

LANSING (AP)—House Democrats, unable to form a consensus majority to pass a $1-billion school aid bill by themselves, continued to await the pleasure today of minority Republicans who must help with the job.

The House meets today at 9:30 a. m., with the debate on the school aid bill at 2 p.m.

Further delay on the record funding bill, the controversial parochial issue and a related tax measure came Tuesday afternoon when GOP leaders asked for more time to discuss strategy within their own caucus.

Both parties held 1 1/2-hour caucuses before the afternoon session, then Majority Floor Leader George F. Montgomery set preliminary debate on the school aid bill for late today. Speaker William A. Ryan said there was no guarantee that-bill could be met.

"Republicans still can't figure out what's in the bill," needed Rep. George Montgomery, D-troit, father of the floor leader.

Gov. William G. Milliken urged the House to move promptly on the bill when he made his State of the State address last week. He also asked the chamber to vote "quickly" on the parochial issue and on a $116-million plan to repeal property tax credits. Milliken asked the House to cut some $51 million from the plan by keeping part of the exemption against individual state income taxes.

Differences over parochial aid are the principal reason for the numerous delays in voting on the full school aid bill.

With the major issue of the session safely postponed Tuesday afternoon, the House turned to some 100 other measures on its calendar but promptly found itself mired in a year-old bugaboo — what to do about campus unrest.

After more than 1 1/2 hours of debate, a 57-man, bipartisan majority overcame more than 24 opponents, largely Democrats, to give preliminary approval to a GOP bill calling for fines of $250-$1,000 or 30 days in jail for anyone refusing to leave a public college campus when ordered off.

The measure was introduced by Rep. Quincy Hoffman, an Applegate farmer, and cosponsored by Minority Leader Robert Waldron of Grosse Pointe. Other supporters said it aims at cracking down on campus revolutionaries and nonstudents who may incite demonstrations or outbursts.

Opponents of the measure charged it could be used arbitrarily to clear college buildings or campuses of persons exposing unpopular causes.

Rep. Dennis Cawthorne of Manistee, one of the few Republicans against the bill, described it as a "dragnet."

CUPEDD Gets $43,100 Grant

Reed Leads East To 142-135 Romp Over West Quint

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — On display next summer at the Wilis Reed All-Star Basketball Camp will be a trophy proving that it's what's up front that counts.

It will serve as a reminder to the teen-age boys present that instructing them in the finer points of the game is one of the best up front—Willis Reed.

Reed already has proved it to some 15,000 persons in Philadelphia's Spectrum and to a national television audience by leading the East to a 142-135 victory over the West in the National Basketball Association All-Star game Tuesday night.

The muscular 6-foot-8 center of the New York Knicks scored all of his 21 points and hauled in 11 rebounds as the East pulled away to an 106-85 advantage entering the final period. The West made one last effort that got it within six points with two minutes left before falling back.

For his efforts, Reed was voted overwhelmingly the Most Valuable Player in his sixth

All-Star game that increased the East's lead over the West to 14-6.

"The game was decided at center," agreed Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati and the East, who was runnerup in the MVP balloting after scoring 21 points that gave him a record 230 for All-Star competition.

"You saw what happened. They just can't stop those two, offensively and off the boards."

He referred to Reed and 7-2 Lew Alcindor of Milwaukee, who had 10 points and 11 rebounds and gave the East the 1-2 center punch that had made them the favorites in the absence of injured Wilt Chamberlain and Nate Thurmond of the West.

"Reed is the toughest center in the league right now," praised Elvin Hayes of San Diego, who scored 24 points and had 15 rebounds as the West's big man.

"He's more trouble than Alcindor because he's stronger. Of course, Lew is coming along and he's going to do in every-body."

Reed, aside from his 245-pound frame, had reason to feel stronger and happier. He was not bothered by the recent nagging stomach problem after tests Monday showed he is suffering only from stomach spasms.

"I didn't even think about the stomach," he said. "It's fun playing in this game and a good showing means something to a player because all the guys are so good."

Among the others who made good showings were Jerry West of Los Angeles, who led the late West comeback and finished with 22 points; John Havlicek of Boston, who scored seven straight points for the East after the West had pulled within 88-82, and Billy Cunningham of Philadelphia, who scored 19 points and helped the East out short the final West threat.

NBA Decides To Add Teams

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National Basketball Association, choosing a collision course with the rival American Basketball Association, has decided to add four new cities next season. Now the question is: can the cities afford the NBA's other additions?

Aside from voting 12-2 Tuesday to expand into Cleveland, Buffalo, Houston and Portland, Ore., the NBA owners also reportedly added some $500,000 to the entrance fee per franchise, raising it to something like $3.5 million.

Another addition to the price of belonging to the NBA is believed to include a term that would give the new city little of the television money.

"There is a good chance four teams will be added," said NBA administrative assistant Carl Scheer, making the expansion announcement for President Walter Kennedy, who was suffering from laryngitis. "The terms and conditions are being discussed and will continue to be discussed with the applicants."

"The owners will reconvene in a special meeting in the next two weeks when a formal announcement will be made."

Michigan Doctor Asks Cross-Body Block Ban

CHICAGO (AP) — The cross-body block should be eliminated from football, a University of Michigan doctor says.

Dr. Thomas R. Peterson of the department of orthopedic surgery at the University of Michigan Hospital studied 259 football knee injuries and found that 54 per cent resulted from this practice.

"I believe that football rules should be changed to eliminate the cross-body block," he wrote in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

In the cross-body block, the defensive player throws himself horizontally at the op-

Court Delays Flood Hearing

NEW YORK (AP) — Organized baseball returns to court Feb. 3 to show cause why veteran outfielder Curt Flood, traded last October from St. Louis to Philadelphia, should not be permitted to negotiate as a free agent.

The defendants—Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, American League President Joe Cronin, National League President Chub Feeney and the 24 major league clubs—were given a two-week postponement Tuesday by Federal Judge Dudley B. Bonsal.

Flood, a $90,000-a-year star, is challenging baseball's reserve clause, which has been upheld twice by the U.S. Supreme Court. Flood contends the reserve clause puts a player in "a state of involuntary servitude" in binding him to his team, which owns him for life or until it sells, trades or releases him. Baseball contends the game would cease to exist without the reserve clause.

Tiger infielder Dalton Jones had a .407 pinch hitting average in 1968, second best mark in the league.

Pembine Tops Carney Cagers

PEMBINE — The Pembine Panthers came up with the second big surprise in the Skyline Conference in the past five days Tuesday night, upsetting the Carney Wolves by 62-37 margin.

The loss was only the third of the season for the Carney quint against six victories. The Wolves had only lost two games in league play going into last night's encounter, while Pembine was in eighth place with a 1-7 mark.

Last night's game was the second big upset in the Skyline Conference in a week, as the Powers-Spalding Tigers suffered their first defeat of the season against Channing Friday night.

Carney trailed by 12 points at the end of the first half and then played even with the Panthers in the third quarter. Pembine then put the nails in the coffin by outscoring Carney 24-11 in the fourth period.

John Dill paced Pembine in the scoring column with 18 points while Roger Russ and Bob Kristoff helped out with 12 points apiece. The only Carney player to hit in double figures was John Perras with 13 points.

Pembine also won the preliminary game by a 58-44 score.

Simpson, Spartans Trip 20th Ranked Notre Dame

EAST LANSING (AP)—Michigan State coach Gus Ganakis said Tuesday that his sophomore Ralph Simpson, who led the Spartans to a 85-82 upset victory over Notre Dame, has been a "sporadic" shooter.

Most coaches can only wish for someone so sporadic to come along.

The 6-foot-4½ shooting ace was averaging 30.2 points a game going into Tuesday's contest and he improved that slightly with a 35-point performance against the Irish, ranked 20th in the Associated Press poll.

"He's a real super-shooter and he's going to be an excellent basketball player before he's through," said Notre Dame coach Johnny Dee the sophomore from Detroit Pershing High.

"Simpson has been sporadic in his shooting, but he's starting to vary his style," said Ganakis after the game. "He's maturing and playing with more basketball sense."

per-shooter on the court, however, Notre Dame's Austin Carr, who stands second only to Louisiana State's Pete Maravich in shooting with a 34.5 point average, stuffed the ball for 39 points.

"Austin Carr is a great player," said Ganakis of the 6-3 junior guard. "Any time you make a mistake, he's got two points."

The first half of the game was close-fought and by the half, the Spartans led 40-36. The Irish came alive at the start of the second half and, paced by John Pleik, scored six straight points and went ahead 42-40.

MSU tied it up at 42-42 and Simpson sank a driving jump shot to put the Spartans ahead to stay with 16:30 remaining in the game.

With just under 10 minutes left, the Irish closed the gap to two, but the Spartans burst the game open and at one point led by 13.

Davidson, No. 11 and the only other team in the AP Top Twenty to see action, pulled out a 79-71 road victory over a scrappy

Furman team at Greenville, S.C. The Wildcats made good on 21-of-27 free throws to avert a possible upset by the aroused Paladins.

The Cincinnati Bearcats, playing at home, whipped Bradley 79-64 paced by Jim Ard, who scored 29 points and became the 18th Cincinnati player to score more than 1,000 career points. He now has 1,005.

Bradley played without star Gene Gathers and Sam Simmons. Both were suspended before the game by Coach Joe Stowell for missing a bed check Monday night.

Texas Tech and Texas Christian each scored home court victories. Tech downed Southern Methodist 90-60. TCU beat Rice 97-88.

Reggie England came off the bench in the second and made five field goals to help Akron score an 87-85 home court triumph over Buffalo.

Elsewhere on a slim national schedule, Los Angeles State stunned Seattle 97-89.

East Skaters Bomb West In Annual All-Star Game

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Superstars Gordie Howe and Bobby Hull each scored a goal and the East Division battered the West 4-1 in the National Hockey League's record-breaking 23rd annual All-Star Game Tuesday night.

Howe, of Detroit, the NHL's all-time scoring champion, got his 10th career all-star goal on a feed from Chicago's Hull, who later scored his third All-Star tally.

Those goals and two others by Montreal's Jacques Laperriere and New York's Walt Tkaczuk all came in the first half of the game against Philadelphia's Bernie Parent, the West's starting goalie.

After Tkaczuk's goal, Jacques Plante of the St. Louis Blues took over in the West nets and displayed some sensational goaltending, holding off the powerful East squad the rest of the way.

The All-Stars shattered three scoring records in the first half-minute of the game when first Laperriere for the East, at 20 seconds, and then Dean Prentice of Pittsburgh for the West, at 37 seconds, traded goals.

Laperriere scored an unassisted goal on a slap shot from the left points and then Prentice tied the score, lobbing a soft 60-footer that skipped into the East net.

The two goals were the fastest in All-Star history as well as the fastest from the start of a game and fastest from the start of a period.

A record All-Star crowd of 16,587 saw the East Division dominate play almost throughout.

The East broke a 1-1 tie at 7:20 of the first period on Howe's power play tally set up on a perfect pass by Hull. Parent never had a chance as the two East superstars threw the puck around in front of his net.

Hull struck again early in the second period, whipping a patented, 35-foot slap shot that whistled past Parent. The shot had so much velocity that it bounded right out of the net, but the red light went on and the East had a 3-1 lead.

Midway through the period, Tkaczuk tapped a loose puck past Parent for the East's fourth goal. It came at 9:37 and marked the end of the evening's work for both Parent and East goalie Ed Giacomin of New York.

Plante took over in the West cage and Chicago's Tony Esposito went into play goal for the East.

Plante was scintillating during the next few minutes as the East turned the pressure on, especially during a power play opportunity when Pittsburgh's Bob Woynowich was serving a two-minute minor penalty.

The West's best opportunity came when Minnesota's line of Claude Larose, Danny O'Shea and Danny Grant buzzed around Esposito midway in the period. But Larose's shot bounced harmlessly off the post.

Disappointed by the lack of an offensive show by the West team, the sellout crowd occupied itself by alternately booing repeated delays of game which were used to insert television commercials, and organist Al Meigrad, brought in from Chicago to share the keyboard with St. Louis regular Norm Kramer.

The East Stars outshot the West 44-17 with Plante making 20 saves in the third period alone.

McLain Feels Boudreau Deserved Honor Sooner

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Boudreau waited 12 years before getting elected into Baseball's Hall of Fame but his outspoken son-in-law—Denny McLain—thinks Boudreau should have received the honor sooner.

"I'm a little prejudiced but I think he should have gotten it 10 years ago," McLain, the Detroit Tigers' pitching ace, said Tuesday after Boudreau was voted into the Hall of Fame by a narrow seven vote margin.

McLain, only 25, has already won over 100 games in his six-year major league career. He won 31 games in 1968 and 24 last year, capturing the Cy Young Award both seasons.

"I hope I'm leading a little path that he can follow," Boudreau, 52, said in New York, where he was on hand personally when Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn officially made the announcement. Boudreau earlier had received the good news at a bowling alley in his Dalton, Ill., home town late Monday night.

The former Cleveland Indians shortstop, who at 24 became a major league manager and won a batting title in 1944, played for 15 years, compiling a .295 lifetime batting mark.

Boudreau managed the Indians from 1942 until 1950 and also piloted the Boston Red Sox from 1952 to 1954 and Kansas City from 1955 to 1958. He then took a job as a sportscaster with WGN in Chicago, where he still works.

Boudreau received 232 votes of the 300 cast by the Baseball Writers Association of America, just seven more than the required 225.

Finishing behind Boudreau this time were Ralph Kiner, the former Pittsburgh Pirates slugger, with 167 votes, followed by Gil Hodges, former Brooklyn Dodger now manager of the world champion New York Mets, with 145.

Early Wynn, the former Cleveland pitcher, who was the most recent 300-game winner in the majors, finished fourth.

Gladstone Lions Sponsor School Safety Program

A Michigan Safety Program, sponsored by the Gladstone Lions Club and the Michigan State Police, is being conducted in all the Gladstone area schools.

Designed to promote safety for the children in the area, each school participating in the program will be presented a blue and gold pennant with the initials MSP, Michigan Safety Program, to be flown over the school each day that an accident has not occurred involving one of the students. An accident which would force the lowering of the flag for 10 days would have to be caused by the carelessness of a student resulting in the loss of school time.

A Michigan State Police trooper will conduct a safety education program at each school and on the completion of an accident free school year the school will receive the Michigan Safety Program award provided by the Lions Club to be displayed in the school.

Ellis Movallson and Trooper Robert Madden are the Lions Club representatives for the program and coordinators for each school have been designated. Mrs. Loyal Swenson will coordinate the program at the Buckeye School, Dale Teinert at the Brampton School, Sister Jean Michael at All Saints School and Carl Westerback, 5th grade instructor, at the James T. Jones School, will be in charge there.

The mile was defined by the Romans as 1,000 paces or double steps, the pace being equal to five Roman feet.

Skating Rink Is Popular 'Spot'

The Gladstone skating rink has proved to be one of the most popular winter recreational spots and every afternoon and evening students of all ages can be found on the rink enjoying this seasonal sport.

The rink is a real community project with the city and the school cooperating. The land is owned by the school and the city provides the facilities, and supervision.

This year the Community School has also taken a hand in the program and has been providing after school supervision from 3 to 5 p. m. Mondays through Friday and from 7 to 10 p. m. daily. Figure skating lessons are provided on Tuesday and Thursday with 80 girls being instructed in these fundamentals under the direction of Mrs. Barbara Peltz.

Skaters are asked to abide by the following rules in order to promote safety on the rink: No snowmobiles or other power machines, sleds or flying saucers on the rink; Refrain from throwing snow or other objects on the ice; No horse-play on the ice and no smoking in the warming house.

Persons not abiding by the rules will be asked to leave the rink. Following the rules will promote a safe and happy sport for youths of all ages.

Film Program

The Gladstone School and Public Library will show films for primary and preschool children Saturday at 1:30 and 2:30 p. m. Mike Mulligan and His Steam Shovel and World in a Marsh are the two features for this week.

'Best Sellers', Films At Library

The Gladstone School and Public Library has many of the new best sellers to offer its patrons. Such books as "The French Lieutenant's Woman," by John Fowles, "The Inheritors" by Harold Robbins, "The Seven Minutes," by Irving Wallace, and "A Pocketful of Rye," by A. J. Cronin, are now available.

The new collection of rental pictures has arrived. These pictures are famous artists and are attractively framed. They are offered for a nominal rental fee of fifty cents per month.

Any person who would like to borrow books from the library but is unable to get to the library may call and arrange-ment will be made to get the books to them.

'My Charlie', No Routine Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
NEW YORK (AP) — "My Sweet Charlie," NBC's made-for-television film feature Tuesday night, was a venture that, in terms of story quality, calibre of acting and certainly in perception and meaning, was far out of the routine mold.

It has been a long time since the television production lines have turned out anything in the dramatic line that might be counted as a small classic. Certainly the vast majority of the movies-for-TV have been at best standard action shows which while diverting and well produced have been loaded with stock characters and had all the earmarks of B features.

But this two hour production was something else. It opened in deceptively leisurely style, showing a young girl—played by Patty Duke—obviously running away. Frightened and worried, she attempts a hitchhike, is given food by a friendly storekeeper and, caught in a storm takes refuge in a closed summer house on the shore near New Orleans.

Performance Praised
Eventually the girl, pregnant, is joined by another fugitive, a Northern black man, played by Al Freeman Jr. They gradually become companions in misery. The black man, it turned out, was a successful New York lawyer who had come South to see the black-white confrontation himself and to "look for my roots." He joined a protest march, got into a fight and fled, thinking he had killed a white man.

The girl, casually educated daughter of a Southern farmer, began with all the traditional prejudices, gradually coming to appreciate the black man as an individual. It was a fine, pure relationship that, inevitably, ended in tragedy.

The performances of Miss Duke and Freeman were superb—sensitive and poignant. While it was essentially a story of a black-white relationship in a Southern background, it was even more a story of a human relationship and one without deliberate villains.

Rating Boost
ABC, looking at an overnight Nielsen rating for the first change in its second season schedule is encouraged by the showing made with its new Monday night movie. A quick sampling of viewers indicated ABC ratings had increased 78 per cent over the previous week—but of course the movie, "How To Steal a Million," with Peter O'Toole and Audrey Hepburn, was a big one.

The real test will come in subsequent weeks.

Jack Benny will be guest of honor at another of those "Friar's Roasts" tonight on NBC. There will be the usual guest speakers being funny at Benny's expense, but the most interesting moments promise to come when Vice President Spiro Agnew makes his speech—and, for a quick change of pace, its a funny one.

Get More Mattress For Your Money

HOME SUPPLY Has A Mattress And Box Spring Set That Will Fit Your Needs AND Your Pocketbook . . .

It's Sealy's 89th Anniversary Special Mattresses With Special Features

At HOME SUPPLY We Sell Sleeping Bliss NOT Just Mattresses And Box Springs!

How much do you weigh? How tall are you? Do you prefer a firm sleeping surface or a softer one? These are questions that have great importance to us at Home Supply. We feel that every person must have his mattress "tailored" to his or her particular physique, and this is why we offer a wide selection in every price range.

You can select the equivalent of a "custom" mattress. It may all sound corny, but we like to think of ourselves as sort of "Doctors of Bliss" when it comes to sleep comfort. All of our staff are now trained to know thoroughly the basic qualities of ALL our mattresses, how they will adapt to a special body type, and the other things that are not obvious at first sight.

Your pocketbook? We worry about that too. We do believe that a couple should invest in the best bedding that they can afford. We have seen what a devastating toll inferior bedding can cause—insomnia, backache, debilitation, for instance. We know that worn and "tired" bedding can rob you of potential energy and fray your disposition. So, with all of this in mind we strive to offer you the best bedding buys, day in and day out. Now and then, like NOW, we out-do ourselves, and have a big bedding sale.

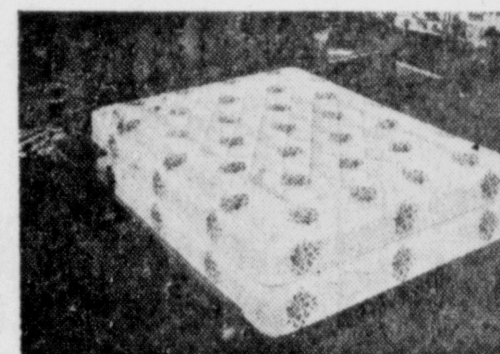

YOU will find no better opportunity to rediscover the joys of sweet revitalizing SLEEP, and SAVE too. So, don't spend another night on a worn mattress—come into Home Supply today!
